Re: Joe's NYC Bar

Dear Arwen,

Thank you for organizing a weekend of great activities on West Church Street. The Interactive Arts Festival was a great success and the performances at Joe's Bar on Thursday and Saturday evening were nothing short of magical.

Bank of America was proud to be a sponsor of last weekend's activities. Your efforts on West Church Street are critical to the successful revitalization of the Parramore neighborhood. The economic impact of your show extends well beyond the doors of the Temenos Theater. Retail vendors located in the municipal parking facility experience more traffic and higher sales due to your efforts. More importantly, your continued presence on W. Church Street will have a positive impact on the apartments being developed by Bank of America and Orlando Neighborhood Improvement Corporation.

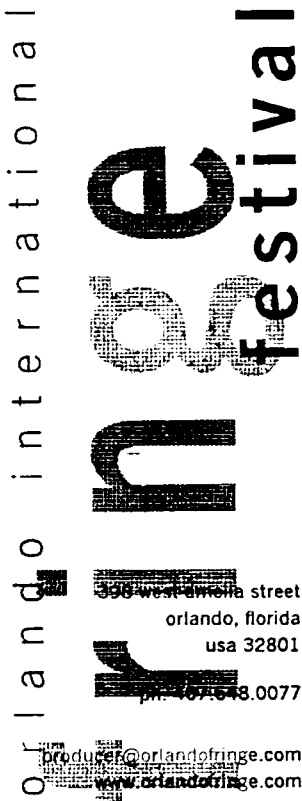

Bank of America, Hughes Supply, Inc., and the City of Orlando have recently made a significant financial commitment to the revitalization of the Parramore neighborhood. Keeping the Temenos Ensemble Theater operating is critical to the success of this revitalization effort.

Please feel free to use this correspondence as a letter of recommendation.

Sincerely

Robert F. Carmichael
Senior Vice President

To Whom it May Concern:

The Orlando International Fringe Festival and Temenos Ensemble Theatre have joined forces in an effort to enhance, expand and promote Children's theatre and education in Central Florida. For several years, the Orlando Fringe has presented KidsFringe, a mini-festival within the Fringe Festival that offers theatrical and educational programming specifically for children. I am very excited that this year Temenos Ensemble Theatre has offered to house KidsFringe in their spectacular venue located at 300 West Church Street. This will be the largest and most accommodating venue the KidsFringe has had to date, and will allow us to greatly enhance the programming we can offer to children.

In 2001 Temenos joined the Fringe with the first "Bring Your Own Venue" show in this festival's history. Briefly, this means Temenos provided their own space to present a groundbreaking site-specific piece of interactive theatre entitled "Joe's NYC Bar". Since last year's festival, Temenos has continued to present this critically acclaimed piece at that location in the hopes of creating an artistic presence in Orlando's West Side, an area that has been slotted for revitalization. The key investors in this effort are; Bank of America, Hughes Supply Inc., ONIC, and the City of Orlando.

By offering this venue to house KidsFringe, Temenos is enabling The Orlando Fringe to create a bigger, more vibrant and exciting experience for Orlando youth. Temenos has made a commitment to the Fringe to make this space available to us for the duration of their residency. The amount of work and worry this commitment saves the Fringe is invaluable.

I would encourage and implore anyone interested in investing in Arts and Education in the Orlando area to join in our combined efforts. It is only through our cooperation and commitment that the vision of a downtown arts district can be realized.

Fringefully Yours,

My daughter Molly and I attended the Interactive Arts Festival in February, 2002. Molly loved being able to express herself in a mural that (partly) still stands today. She interacted with other children she met there, picked up some techniques that they were using and wanted to paint for hours!

For me, seeing youth and adults come together in a learning environment with an outcome that improved the community, was the really satisfying measurement of the event.

I hope you will continue this significant event.

Sincerely,

Re: Joe's NYC Bar

Dear Arwen,

Last Thursday night I had the supreme pleasure of participating in your theatrical performance. It was a wonderful experience, and I have been telling my friends all about it.

Our company, Orlando Neighborhood Improvement Corporation (ONIC), has worked to revitalize the Parramore area for a number of years. While we feel our efforts in housing have been very successful, it is groups like yours that will breathe the extra life into the public and retail spaces that is so critical to a vibrant neighborhood. More important, your continued presence on W. Church Street will have a positive impact on the apartments being developed by Bank of America and ONIC.

Bank of America, ONIC, Hughes Supply, Inc., and the City of Orlando have recently made a significant financial commitment to the revitalization of the Parramore neighborhood. Keeping the Temenos Ensemble Theater operating is critical to the success of this revitalization effort.
